Beaver's Back For More

If you have fond memories of a rumpled nine-year-old bursting through the front door of a suburban house to shout, "Hey Mom, I'm home!" you're not alone. Three generations of Americans grew up with "Leave It to Beaver," and think of the impish but lovable Beaver Cleaver, his father Ward, mother June, and big brother Wally as friends and neighbors. The TV series ran from 1957 through 1963, and repeats of the episodes have never left the air.

Now "Still the Beaver," a new half-hour series made exclusively for The Disney Channel, recreates the Cleavers' world of love and laughter. Twenty years have passed, and the now adult Beaver and Wally are helping their own kids survive the puzzling process of growing up. You'll see most of your favorite actors from the original series, plus a new gang of child stars. And you'll be warmed by the same strong current of human understanding and solid values which gave "Leave It to Beaver" its special appeal.

"We dug up the blueprints and restored everything exactly the way it was."

The idea of having a "Beaver" reunion first came to Brian Levant, the co-producer of this series, back in 1975.

Around that time, America began catching Beaver fever. Beaver memorabilia and merchandise were suddenly in great demand. Songs, cereal boxes, and even national magazines like People and Time saluted the program, which was being shown in 190 different television markets around the country. In the early '80s, Levant, the producer of "Mork and Mindy" and "The Bad News Bears," joined forces with another Beaver fan, Nick Abdo, whose production credits include "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley." Together they created a two-hour movie of the week called "Still the Beaver," which delighted the fans when it aired in 1983.

"Kids still have the same trouble living up to what the world—and their parents—expect of them."

Although the movie was highly rated, Levant feared he had reached a dead end. "I wanted to do a series, but the networks weren't interested in family shows," he explains. "Luckily, The Disney Channel believes that stories about loving families never go out of style, and we soon reached an agreement."

Jerry Mathers is still the Beaver—but now he's divorced and raising two rambunctious sons with the help of his mother. Barbara Billingsley, as June, continues to beam with the warmth, love, and understanding which won her the unofficial title of "America's favorite mother." Tony Dow recreates his role as Wally, now a successful attorney who married his former high school sweetheart Mary Ellen Rogers (Janice Kent). And Ken Osmond carries on as Eddie Haskell, who is now running a shady construction firm. But Ward Cleaver's never-failing patience and sage advice is missing. The part played by the late Hugh Beaumont was not recast.

"A boy still makes the change from liking frogs to liking girls."

Like "Leave It to Beaver," this new series offers a child's-eye view of the world. So finding exactly the right children for the roles of Beaver's two sons and Wally's daughter was crucial. "We had a hard time choosing the kids," Levant says. "We were trying to find youngsters who could combine wide-eyed innocence with a polished performance. And they

me & Wally

At the lake

a mess of frogs

Fur-Filled Adventures

had to be kids who could represent how we feel about ourselves."

The final choice was made after more than 600 children from around the country were auditioned. Beaver's oldest son Ward—nicknamed "Kip"—is played by

"I hope today's kids can grow up with Kip and Kelly the way we grew up with the Beaver."

Kipp Marcus, a New Yorker who combines Broadway and Little League experience. John Snee reprises his role in the two-hour movie as Beaver's younger son, Oliver. Wally's daughter, Kelly, is portrayed by Kaleena Kiff, a young actress who appeared in "Love, Sydney." And carrying on the wise-aleck tradition of Eddie Haskell (Ken Osmond) is Eric Osmond, the actor's real-life son.

These new kids are still playing in the old Cleaver home at 211 Pine Street. "We dug up the blueprints and restored everything exactly the way it was, down to the molding on the door and the window trim," says Levant. "Even the interior sets are the same."

While Wally, Beaver, and the rest of the gang were growing up, their real-life counterparts were equally busy. During the 20 years between the two series, Jerry Mathers formed a rock band (Beaver and the Trappers), got a degree in philosophy, and worked as a real estate broker. After dabbling in painting, sculpture, and architecture, Tony Dow started a successful construction company which he eventually gave up to concentrate on acting. Ken Osmond has been working for the Los Angeles Police Department. And Barbara Billingsley has frequently been seen in television shows and movies, most notably as a jive-talking passenger in "Airplane."

In reuniting these actors, "Still the Beaver" also renews the Cleaver family's spirit—the readiness to share problems and solve them together—which has not been dated by the passing years.

"You know, I talked to a lot of kids when we were casting," says Levant. "The dolls have changed, the clothes have changed, the jargon has changed, but the trials and tribulations of childhood remain the same."

"Kids still have the same trouble living up to what the world—and their parents—expect of them. And they have to pass the same milestones. A boy still makes the change from liking frogs to liking girls."

"I hope today's kids can grow up with Kip and Kelly the way we grew up with the Beaver." 🐿

A TRADITION IN SUNDAY NIGHT VIEWING RETURNS!

Remember how your family eagerly awaited Sunday evenings and this special show? In keeping with a grand old tradition, it's back in the familiar time slot. A new program begins on Sunday night, then plays throughout the week.

In "The Plausible Impossible" beginning November 4, Walt Disney reveals how animation makes improbable actions seem believable. He illustrates with scenes from "Thru the Mirror" and the soup-eating sequence edited from "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

"The Coyote's Lament" on November 11 is an animated tale of woe told by Bent Tail, a grandpappy coyote. According to Bent Tail, most of the troubles he's seen come from mer and their dogs. In this case Pluto represents "EveryDog" when he spoils Bent Tail's dinner plans.

Man plays a kindlier role in "Ida, the Offbeat Eagle," beginning November 18. A fledgling golden eagle is rescued and cared for by Uncle Billy, an old mountain hermit. The two become friends. When Uncle Billy's life is endangered, Ida provides his only chance for rescue.

The Slave in the Magic Mirror takes over from Walt as host of "Our

So he introduces a cadre of cads, including Captain Hook from "Peter Pan," Brer Bear and Brer Fox from "Song of the South," and The Big Bad Wolf from "The Three Little Pigs." Their knavery guarantees an hour of shivery fun!

FOR THE FIRST TIME EVER—THE COMPLETE,

The Happiest

Fred MacMurray, Tommy Steele, Greer Garson,

Here is a real surprise! Thanks to ardent studio preservationists, a fully restored, never-before-shown print of Walt Disney's lavish musical comedy, "The Happiest Millionaire," is coming your way—exclusively on The Disney Channel!

This movie adaptation of the Broadway hit about a wealthy Philadelphia eccentric and his family was first presented in stereophonic sound at a running time of 159 minutes. But exhibitors wanted it shortened for more "plays per day," so when the film reached Radio City Music Hall several months later it had been trimmed to 141 minutes and ended at an earlier point in the story.

More cuts were made as the picture went into general release. One version deleted characters still mentioned in the credits.

The most common version in circulation runs just under two hours, with a monaural sound track.

Over the years Disney Studio archivists and others had hoped a print of the uncut film existed. Finally last November two incomplete prints were located which, when combined, restored "The Happiest Millionaire" to its original length. At the same time a print was found of "It Won't Be Long 'Til Christmas," a musical number scissored from the movie before its premiere. We've put this never-before-seen sequence back into the film, and you'll share a charming, reflective moment with Fred MacMurray as Greer Garson sings to him.

"The Happiest Millionaire" stars Fred MacMurray as Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, socialite, explorer, alligator collector, pugilist and patriot. He's also master of an equally freewheeling household consisting of his wife (Greer Garson), children (Lesley Ann Warren, Paul Petersen, Eddie Hodges), aunt (Gladys Cooper),

Fred MacMurray dances with Lesley Ann Warren

NEVER-BEFORE-SHOWN PRODUCTION!

Millionaire

Geraldine Page, Gladys Cooper, Hermione Baddeley

cook (Hermione Baddeley) and butler (Tommy Steele).

Biddle's daughter Cordelia is starting to date, but raised to the rigors of boxing and other sports, doesn't quite know how to go about it. Her boy friend (John Davidson) is heir to a tobacco fortune, but would rather design automobiles. His mother (Geraldine Page) is scandalized by the whole antic Biddle family. Together, they're a Who's Who of funmakers.

"The Happiest Millionaire" is derived from the book "My Philadelphia Father" by Cordelia Drexel Biddle and Kyle Crichton which became a successful stage comedy. Walt Disney's happy experience with "Mary Poppins" as an original film musical, rare in Hollywood, led him to follow suit for "Millionaire." Oscar-winning composers Richard M.

and Robert B. Sherman wrote 12 songs for A J Carothers' screenplay. Richard Sherman makes a cameo appearance as a flutist accompanying Biddle's "operatic" performance in the garden party sequence toward the end of the film.

The Happiest Millionaire" also provided an American movie debut for England's Tommy Steele. The ebullient entertainer, currently starring in "Singin' in the Rain" at the London Palladium, remembers his finest moments as Biddle's butler John Lawless when he had to handle alligators for several scenes.

"I kept wondering how they were going to film them," Steele says. "So one day the director (Norman Tokar) showed me this mechanical alligator. It actually ran by remote control. It walked up and down, it walked backwards. All my fears vanished and I thought, 'Lovely.'

"Comes the day they've got the cameras ready, we walk through the scenes, then someone yells, 'Bring on the mechanical alligator.' It comes on, walks to the middle of the floor, turns over, and blows up! 'Thank God we've got Plan B,' says the director. And they've got live ones! I knew it. I bloody knew I was going to end up with live alligators. They bring in this monster and I thought to myself, 'You mustn't worry, you've got to get yourself in there, and work with that alligator.' I've heard of walking away with a scene, but being walked away by the scene? Luckily everything went okay and we did it all in a day."

Still The Beaver

Barbara Billingsley, Tony Dow, Ken Osmond and Jerry Mathers with Janice Kent, Kaleena Kiff, John Snee, Eric Osmond, Kipp Marcus

SERIES PREMIERE

Welcome a grown-up Beaver Cleaver and his friends to The Disney Channel. Then follow this family comedy in two new shows each month.

Beaver (Jerry Mathers) is now a divorced father raising two sons with the help of his mother June (Barbara Billingsley). In "Growing Pains," which opens the series November 7, Beaver thinks his eight-year-old son Oliver (John Snee) is too young to work for sneaky Freddie Haskell (Eric Osmond). But to prove he's no longer a baby, Oliver takes the job anyway. His disobedience gets him into some adult-sized trouble that only the Beaver can untangle.

Warm family feeling and June's gigantic turkey draw the Cleavers and their friends together in "Thanksgiving Day" (beginning November 21).

Eddie Haskell puts the Indian sign on Beaver (center) in this homey portrait of the Cleavers and their friends

However, Beaver's oldest son Kip (Kipp Marcus) is missing. He's bored with family affairs, and wants to spend the holiday with a pal. But as turkey-time draws closer, Kip finds himself torn between pride and loneliness.

"Beyond Tron" pictures computer animation now

DISNEY STUDIO SHOWCASE

Your enthusiasm for "Tron," the futuristic fantasy which premiered on The Disney Channel in April, 1983, encouraged us to look into the state of computer animation art today. "Tron" used computer graphics more effectively than any motion picture at the time.

William Katt, star of Touchstone Films' forthcoming "Baby," hosts this hour of marvels "beyond Tron." Starting with scenes from that picture, he presents a selection of current computer-animated movies including Lucasfilm Ltd.'s experimental "André and Wally B." He introduces wonderworkers behind the computer terminals who can turn numbers into dazzling, imaginative pictures. You'll see why it's often impossible to tell where human artistry stops and electronic wizardry begins.

RETURN FROM WITCH MOUNTAIN

Bette Davis, Christopher Lee,
Kim Richards, Ike Eisenmann

Here's a supernaturally suspenseful film that will keep you on the edge of your seat. In this sequel to "Escape to Witch Mountain," two extraterrestrial orphans, Tia and Tony Malone (Kim Richards, Ike Eisenmann), think no one will notice their telepathic talents while they vacation in Los Angeles.

But before you can say E-S-P, Tony is kidnapped by evil Dr. Victor Gannon (Christopher Lee) and his partner Letha Wedge (Bette Davis). Having perfected a mind-control device which puts all of Tony's powers at their command, they take over a nuclear reactor and demand a $5 million ransom.

Using her own mental magic, Tia tracks her brother to the very heart of the nuclear breeder. With Tony still under Gannon's control, they face off in a spectacular psychic skirmish.

Christopher Lee, one of the screen's suavest villains, finds his role as Dr. Gannon very congenial. "He's not a terribly evil sort," he explains. "He merely wants to rule the world...and you can't fault a man for having ambitions."

THE FLIGHT OF THE GREY WOLF

Jeff East, Barbara Hale,
Bill Williams, William Bryant

Grey, the pet wolf of teenager Russ Hanson (Jeff East), is a misfit, distrusted by both the civilized world and his wild kin.

Grey's troubles start after he kills a dog that attacks his master. Confused and unsettled after the fight, the wolf runs to the woods. There he becomes the quarry for a sheriff's posse.

After rescuing Grey from their rifles and traps, Russ realizes that the wolf can no longer be his pet. But can he teach Grey to adapt to the wilds...or is it too late?

A MEETING OF AGES, MINDS—AND HEARTS

A Time For Grandparents

What does it mean to be a grandparent? A grandchild?

Special guests Meredith MacRae and Anson Williams recall memories and state their beliefs that, whether relative or friend, older people provide wisdom, unconditional love and a vital link between past and future.

"Slow down and know who these people are," Williams says. Like a lovingly crafted quilt, this multifaceted show does just that, capturing the intricacies of relationships with all their shades, nuances and beauty.

A series of evocative cameo portraits show real people loving, trusting and nurturing each other in real situations. There are moments of mutual learning. Traditional crafts are taught. Contemporary ideas are shared. Inherited talents are proudly displayed.

You'll join a four-generation Thanksgiving

Quilters take pleasure and pride in their folk craft gathering at the cabin of 91-year-old Aleen Cummings. Watch senior Sam Goldman turn an entire elementary class into "grandkids" through a unique inter-generational program called "Project Joy." Bask in the sunny friendship between Jean, a retirement home resident, and Paul, her surrogate grandson.

Look over Madie Raye's shoulder as she coaches her grandniece in the finer points of biscuit-making. Listen to talk of family events and history as quilters ply their craft. Tap your toes to a lively tune fiddled by Oak Gibson and his granddaughter Marcie.

This insightful program makes a memorable statement about the value and craft of grandparenting and the importance of the extended family.

Zorro rides again

"THE SIGN OF ZORRO"

Guy Williams, Henry Calvin, Gene Sheldon

As soon as our daily "Zorro" series left the air, you started asking for more adventures starring the masked avenger. So here's a treat for you Zorro fans: a full-length film packed with all the action you love!

By day our hero (Guy Williams) is Don Diego, an aristocrat in the pueblo of Los Angeles. By night he's Zorro "the Fox," whose lightning-fast wit and sword make him the nemesis of the town's corrupt commandante (Britt Lomond).

Zorro has his hands full rescuing friends from prison and unmasking an impostor who planned to discredit him. But when his own identity slips out, can he still foil the commandante's final plot?

Zorro first appeared in a 1919 comic strip, and has since figured in over a dozen films and in our popular television series. November 4, 6, 9, 13, 14, 17, 19, 23, 25, 28

STOP, LOOK AND LAUGH!

Steve Allen hosts (from left) Red Buttons, Shelley Berman and George Gobel

Spend a hilarious hour with three of the fastest wits in the West as Steve Allen welcomes Shelley Berman, Red Buttons and George Gobel to his Comedy Room. Also present are Steve's English sidekick Joe Baker, the Terry Gibbs Sextet, and bright young stand-up comedian Glenn Hirsch. From start to finish, it's ad libs and zingers all the way.

Berman and Allen go back to the good old video days of the Tonight Show and the Sunday Show. Proving that nostalgic humor is timeless, Steve rolls a tape of Berman performing his "Morning After" routine on one of those early programs.

Red Buttons, whom Allen describes as a 104-year-old with the face of a teenager, recites pages from his high school autobiography book. "Lonesome George" Gobel—an alumnus of the Barn Dance Show 50 years ago—applies his dry wit to a wet subject, "The Curse of Drink."

The Comedy Room also spotlights newcomers, and as a recently transplanted New Yorker, Glenn Hirsch offers his impression of Los Angeles.

A magical instrument, a kidnapping, and the day-to-day adventures of some average kids are the ingredients for fun in this month's films.

"The Marvelous Music of Philip the Small" (beginning November 3) sets the tempo when an undersized German schoolboy finds an enchanted recorder that can change the size of anything—except him.

It's followed by "Cathryn Finds Her Balance" from the Canadian series, "The Kids of Degrassi Street." Afraid her divorced parents will create a scene, Cathryn does some fancy footwork to keep them apart.

An African youngster, kidnapped en route to a London Embassy must stop a political assassina-

WONDER MAN

Danny Kaye, Virginia Mayo, Vera-Ellen

Let Danny Kaye double your delight with his droll dual role in this splashy musical comedy.

Danny I is a nightclub performer who's gunned down by gangsters before he can get to the D.A. with information against them. Danny II is a bookworm who carries on for his identical twin brother, confusing the hoods no end. Luscious Virginia Mayo and leggy Vera-Ellen are the boys' girl friends. The result is as neat a package of film entertainment as ever came out of Hollywood.

Disney Family Album

Meet Ken Anderson, the animator whose wide range of talents even impressed Walt Disney! Walt thought Ken was among the most versatile of the studio's high-powered crew. You'll see why in this month's "Disney Family Album."

But Ken is modest about his skills as architect, painter, and sketch artist. In looking back over his 50-year career, he focuses on the excitement of the early days. "I loved to be close to Walt because that's where everything started," he says.

And he usually got his wish. Walt put Ken in charge of the overall look of many new features. His magic touch is evident in the glowing Spanish landscapes of "Ferdinand the Bull," the fairytale architecture of Pinocchio's hamlet, and the centaurs' elegant meadows in "Fantasia."

After Walt's death, Ken took the lead in developing new animated features. For "Robin Hood" (which will air on The Disney Channel next year) Ken showed his knack for changing a human character into just the right animal. Robin became a crafty fox, Little John a bear, and Maid Marian an enticing vixen.

Ken Anderson

Most recently, Anderson drew on his architectural skills to design the African Pavilion at EPCOT Center and the new Fantasyland at Disneyland. After 50 years, his wish to be where everything starts is still coming true.

HERE'S TO THE COWBOY

"Go down the road" with cowboys who spend nine months of the year on the rodeo circuit, risking broken bones and worse by riding bucking horses and bulls and wrasslin' steers for little more than the glory of it.

Their way of life often begins early, when they compete in Little Britches "mutton bustin'" and calf-riding competitions. By adulthood they have succumbed to the lure of "a free life, with lots of excitement, no responsibilities, and a chance to live out the fantasies of childhood." Few earn much money, but one rodeo cowboy speaks for all when he says, "I was born on the road, always been on the road, and I like it quite a bit."

This boisterous docudrama was filmed at the Ponoka Stampede, Innisfail Rodeo, and Calgary

Ride a Wild Pony

Michael Craig,
 John Meillon,
 Robert Bettles, Eva Griffith

If freedom were something you could see, it might look like a wild pony racing across the hills.

At least that's how it appears to 13-year-old Scott Pirie (Robert Bettles), a poor country boy whose wild pony Taff gives him the run of the Australian bushland.

But Scott learns you can't always gallop away from your problems when Josie Ellison (Eva Griffith), the pampered daughter of a wealthy horse breeder, claims Taff is actually her gentle pony Bo. The wild pony himself finally chooses his rightful owner.

You don't get doubletalk from the Edison twins. These teenage sleuths use science to solve neighborhood mysteries—and to get kid brother Paul out of trouble when necessary.

In "Enemy of Weston," (premiering November 3) chemical wastes are poisoning the local pond. If Ann and Tom can't trace the culprit in time, there will be no swim race—and Paul is the defending champ!

Tom and Paul Edison (left) on the trail of an impostor

Paul knows he's not just seeing double in "Double Trouble" (premiering November 17). He's sure the real corporation president is the old man he saw running through the park, not the beaming look-alike in the executive suite. But how can he prove it?

Each episode ends with an animated explanation of the scientific principles used by Tom and Ann to unravel the monthly riddles.

A KING IN NEW YORK

Charles Chaplin, Dawn Addams, Oliver Johnston

Our Charlie Chaplin cavalcade has taken you from his early comedies through his later classics. "A King in New York" (1957) is Chaplin's farewell as writer, director and star of his own productions.

Here Charlie plays King Shahdov of Estrovia, exiled to the United States. Without money, he tries in various hapless ways to make a buck. Eventually, through a chance encounter with a runaway boy whose parents have run afoul of political witch-hunters, Shahdov falls under suspicion too. The result is a burlesque on politics, TV commercialism, and so-called upper class society.

NIGHT CROSSING

John Hurt, Jane Alexander, Beau Bridges, Glynnis O'Connor, Doug McKeon

East German family plans escape

Thrill to this incredible true story of two young couples and their four children who risk everything attempting to escape Communist oppression in East Germany.

Under the constant threat of arrest and imprisonment, they secretly build the largest hot-air balloon ever to fly over Europe. The bag is stitched together on a foot-pumped sewing machine hidden in an attic. The gondola and burner are handmade in a cellar.

After agonizing setbacks, the balloon is ready at last. But the families still face the overwhelming odds of unpredictable weather and an untested, homemade craft that must carry them above 386 miles of barbed wire walls, automatic machine guns, armed guards and deadly land mines. Their lives are literally in the balance as they begin their perilous ascent...

"Night Crossing" was directed by Academy Award winner Delbert Mann, who also guided last month's stellar feature on The Disney Channel, "Love Leads the Way." The production was filmed entirely on location in West Germany, where a half-mile section of iron barricades and gun emplacements was built to simulate the grim East German border. Seven balloons were used to recreate the daring flight, each a meticulous reproduction of the original.

THE EYES OF THE AMARYLLIS

Ruth Ford, Martha Byrne, Jonathan Bolt, Guy Boyd

Grandmother and child are enmeshed in a mystery

Riddles and mysteries abound in this ghost story set on the Nantucket coast of 1882.

For 30 years Geneva Reade (Ruth Ford) has sought some seaborne sign from her husband, skipper of the storm-wrecked brig Amaryllis which sank without a trace offshore while she watched helplessly.

When Geneva's 11-year-old granddaughter Jenny (Martha Byrne) joins the quest, she is swept into an eerie game between her grandmother, a ghost, and the unfathomable sea.

THE EXPLORERS

"Vanishing Breed: The Last Cannibals"

Headhunters, isolated from civilization for thousands of years, still live on the mountains and riverbanks of New Guinea. Officially, cannibalism no longer exists there. But explorer Jens Bjerre, our leader on this trek, assures us, "In isolated cases, the tradition of cannibalism continues."

The daily life of these "last cannibals" takes us back to the Stone Age. Toddlers practice with bows and arrows, women make clothes from bark and grass, tribesmen hunt and cook.

Headhunters use masks to disguise themselves

Ginger Rogers takes a bow

Dreamboat

Clifton Webb, Ginger Rogers, Anne Francis

Television takes its share of kidding in this comedy, starring Clifton Webb as a college professor whose past (he was a silent movie idol) returns to haunt him.

When the prof's old flickers start to play on TV, his former leading lady (Ginger Rogers) contrives a comeback—against his will — for them both. Meanwhile the tube creates new popularity for their bygone antics, as shown in scenes from their silent films where they cavort with World War I aviators, foreign legionnaires, masked swordsmen and swashbuckling musketeers.

MORE EXCITEMENT AHEAD FOR "FIVE MILE CREEK"

"The cast and crew of 'Five Mile Creek' are as excited about what's happening as the characters on the show," says Doug Netter, producer of the series.

He's talking about the dramatic developments in the program's third season, now filming in Australia.

"The episodes you'll see this month and next mark the end of a chapter in the lives of the Five Milers," Netter explains. "Then there'll be a different locale, some new characters, and a lot of surprises. Of course your old friends in the series will be around, too."

The Disney Channel will present one show a month through February, while the production company is relocating. In March we'll again start showing two brand-new episodes every month.

JOHNNY SHILOH

Brian Keith, Kevin Corcoran, Eddie Hodges

Does the courage of a single individual ever make a difference? In this true story, a boy learns that his own bravery can change the course of a battle—and possibly the course of history.

Eleven-year-old Johnny Clem (Kevin Corcoran), the drummer boy for a Yankee cavalry unit, is shaken when he sees the Union lines begin to crumble during the savage battle at Shiloh, Tennessee. But his resolve to stand fast and keep on drumming inspires the fleeing troops to return to the fray. Ultimately, the Union emerges victorious.

This lesson in courage strengthens Johnny through the many adventures in his future.

Walt Disney went to great lengths to assure the authenticity of this period film. Hundreds of foot soldiers waged war on the "battlefield" of Disney's Golden Oak Ranch in Southern California.

"Beaver Valley"

The domestic life of beavers and other wild animals in their natural environment highlights this Academy Award winner.

Wildlife photographers spent months in remote regions of Montana and Minnesota recording the habits of the beaver, moose, deer, bear, otter, coyote and other woodland dwellers.

This True-Life Adventure follows "The Flight of the Grey Wolf" (see page 9).

"Tomorrow We Diet"

Goofy, deciding to reduce, is torn between his conscience and his will power (or lack of it). Watch the battle of the century between these opposing forces in this cartoon, following "Night Crossing" (see page 15).

"Modern Inventions"

Donald Duck goes quackers in a museum of daffy inventions. This cartoon classic follows "A King in New York" (see page 14).

"The Lemmings and Arctic Bird Life"

Photographed on the frostbitten roof of the world, this featurette stars such birds as osprey, gull, phalarope, raven, turnstone, snow goose, golden-eye duck and jaeger bird.

It also depicts the mad migration panic which periodically seizes the handsome little arctic animals called lemmings and drives them to mass destruction.

This nature film follows "Spirit of the Wind" (see page 12).

"Cold Turkey"

Pluto and Milton the cat raid the fridge and make off with an uncooked turkey. The gobbler encounters many detours on its way toward their stomachs in this lively cartoon, which follows "The Happiest Millionaire" (see page 6).

"Noah's Ark"

This age-old story of Father Noah and his voyage aboard the ark is told in song and a completely new style of Disney animation.

Paper clips, rubber bands, erasers, drinking straws, corks, pins, pipe cleaners, yarn, brushes, bottles, clothespins, pencils, Ping-Pong balls and just about anything else at hand were used by Disney artists to create 150 animated characters. Four songs carry the narrative of Noah's adventures on his zoological cruise.

This novelty follows "Return from Witch Mountain" (see page 9).

Scenes from Disney classics, questions about them, and the racing wheels of offbeat vehicles enliven this competition for Contraptiles.

We're All Ears

Linda Palmer
Subscriber Services Director

Dear Friends,

It's Thanksgiving, the season for individual—and national—gratefulness. Like you, all of us here have many things for which we're thankful.

When I asked my co-workers to name something about The Disney Channel that made them particularly grateful, here's what some of them said:

Jamie Krug, Business Affairs: "The premiere of my new pet project, 'Still the Beaver.'"

Suzanne Stevens, Program Executive: "A program near and dear to my heart, 'A Time for Grandparents.'"

Vince Roberts, Director of Engineering: "One of my favorite swashbucklers, 'The Sign of Zorro.'"

Leonard Shannon, Copy Consultant: "A Disney treasure, 'The Happiest Millionaire.'"

Personally, I'm grateful for all your wonderful letters and your enthusiastic reception of the many new programs we've created for your pleasure.

On behalf of everyone here, I'd like to wish you and your families a wonderful Thanksgiving together.

Hope to hear from you soon.

Sincerely,

Linda

QUESTIONS AND COMMENTS

Your movies are fine for 10- and 12-year-olds, but it seems to me you could have some for younger children too! What about some of Walt Disney's wonderful animated films that appeal to all ages?

Betty Jones
Merced, CA

Exciting news! In response to many similar subscriber requests, we'll be airing two more animated Disney classics, "Robin Hood" and "The Sword in the Stone," in the near future.

Thank you for "Mousercise"! I was a tired, overworked mother of four great kids. Thanks to you, I am now an energetic, slightly shapelier, overworked mother of four great kids! I can't sleep late anymore because if I don't make it to the TV by 7:30 a.m., my day is shot! My children join me (some in body—some in spirit) and we all have great fun.

Mrs. Roberta Rana
Teaneck, NJ

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY GREETINGS A HIT!

My daughter Haley received her birthday card from Mickey today, and she was absolutely thrilled! I have no idea who turned her name in, but we'll long remember this card's arrival!

Carla Lambright
Pearl, MS

We're glad "Mickey's Birthday Wish" was a success. Look for more details about it in the December issue of the Magazine.

WHO'S WHO ON THE DISNEY CHANNEL?

Will you please settle a question for me? My husband and son claim that Ken Berry, who plays the male lead in "Herbie Rides Again," also starred in "The Love Bug." I say he didn't. My husband will take me out to dinner if I'm right.

Barb McCormick
Wyandotte, MI

"The Love Bug" stars Dean Jones, not Ken Berry. Hope you enjoy your dinner out!

MEET THE DISNEY FAMILY

"Disney Family Album" is a great idea! I especially enjoyed the episode with Clarence (Ducky) Nash. When I was a child, anything to do with Disney was magic. Now that I'm a bit older, I've gained an added appreciation for the talented people behind that magic. Thank you for allowing us to meet some of them!

Patti Tarantino

THANKS FOR THE MEMORIES

I was delighted to learn of your plans to create a "Still the Beaver" series. There's something very special about a television channel that recognizes the fondness many viewers have for things they grew up with.

Did I notice Jean Marsh, of "Upstairs, Downstairs" fame, in "The Horsemasters" on The Disney Channel recently?—R.T.W., Birmingham, Ala.

Yes, Jean Marsh appeared in that TV movie, which Disney made in the early 1960s. Look for her again in next summer's theatrical release of "OZ," the new Disney film based on the books of L. Frank Baum.

DISNEY CHANNEL TRIVIA

...Hans Conried portrayed the Slave in the Magic Mirror for the Disney television show, "Our Unsung Villains" (see page 5). But in his first appearance in "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the Slave was voiced by Moroni Olsen.

...Kevin Corcoran, starring as "Johnny Shiloh" (see page 22), comes from a show business family. His brothers and sisters—Bill, Hugh, Brian, Noreen, Donna, Kerry, and Kelly—often turned up in TV and films.

... "Ride a Wild Pony" (see page 14) was the first Disney feature filmed in Australia, though the wildlife photographer team of Alfred and Elma Milotte had produced fascinating footage of unique Australian animals two decades earlier for the featurette, "Nature's Strangest Creatures."

WHEN FINDERS AREN'T KEEPERS

In "Ride a Wild Pony," November 1, 4, 6, 8, 12, 14, 20, 23, 25 and 27, the lawyer trying to help Scott reclaim his pony says that in a question of rightful ownership, "possession is 9/10 of the law," or, in other words, "finders keepers." Yet that rule doesn't always apply.

You and your family be the lawyers, judge, and jury on the three cases here, and decide how you would settle each one.

CASE ONE

While riding her bike, Lin spotted a backpack by the path. She hadn't seen any other riders all morning, and had no way of knowing how long the pack had been there. She found no identification on the pack or in its contents, so she decided to keep and use it. Several days later, Steve claimed the pack was his. But he couldn't say when or where he lost it, or identify what was in it. Who should keep the pack?

Robert Pettles as determined Scott Pirie loses Taff, his beloved wild pony

CASE TWO

Ann found 75 cents on the sidewalk outside the grocery store. No one was standing nearby, but as she picked up the money, Elaine rushed up, claiming that the money was hers. She was carrying a grocery bag with a sales slip in it. The bag had a hole in the bottom. How would you prove or disprove Elaine's claim?

CASE THREE

Sally's brand new, unmarked pencil case disappeared from her desk Tuesday morning during recess and one just like it showed up on Sandra's desk Tuesday afternoon. Sandra and Sally had quarreled, and Sally felt sure the case was hers even though her name wasn't on it. She waited until Sandra left school, and started to take the case from Sandra's desk when the teacher walked in. How would you set this matter straight?

MICKEY'S Just for Kids SECTION

Hi there!

What do you like best about November? I like Thanksgiving (and Minnie's pumpkin pies), and playing touch football with Goofy and the gang.

There's plenty of excitement cooking with a feast of entertainment planned for you. A special treat is "Still the Beaver," a brand new comedy series beginning this month. You'll find more double helpings of adventure and laughter with films and programs like "The Happiest Millionaire," "Return from Witch Mountain," "Five Mile Creek," and "The Wonderful World of Disney."

Pull up a chair and join us for a month-long celebration with plenty of good times in the "Just for Kids" section too! You're a special guest of The Disney Channel, and all of us here are thankful for you!

BONE UP ON DRAWING PLUTO

Pluto's been Mickey's pet since 1931, when he appeared in a cartoon called "The Moose Hunt." Learn to draw a picture-perfect Pluto by following these instructions.

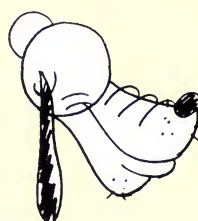

PLUTO'S HEAD:

1. Draw a medium-sized circle. Add a small half circle on one side and a pear shape to the other side. Change the pear shape slightly as shown. There's the basic outline of Pluto's head.

2. Lightly sketch a curved line dividing the pear shape. End it with two short lines in the lower part of the circle to make Pluto's upper lip and jaw.

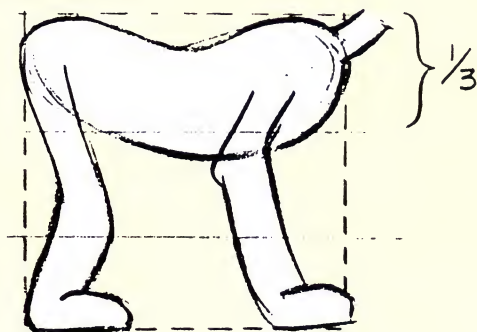

3. Draw a long teardrop for his ear. Add three curved lines to his snout, some whiskers and a small black oval for his nose.

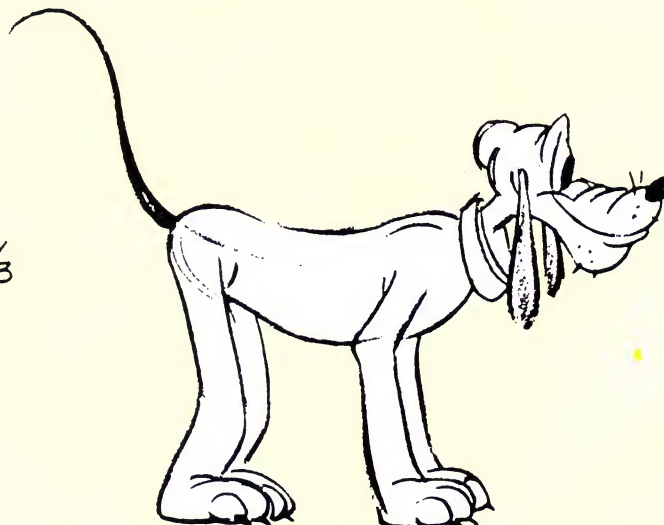

4. To make his eye and eyebrow, draw two ovals and darken one. Top with two curved lines.

PLUTO'S BODY:

5. Draw a sideways hot dog. Add Pluto's legs and feet as shown.

6. A thin neck holds his head up. (You already know how to draw the head.)

7. His tail starts off thick and gets thinner. Add some toenails to his paws and a collar.

8. There—you did it! You drew Pluto! That's doggone fantastic!

MATCH THAT VILLAIN!

In "Our Unsung Villains" on "The Wonderful World of Disney" November 25, 27, 28, 30, the Slave in the Magic Mirror says that bad guys are just as important in Disney films as the heroes and heroines.

See if you can match the villains to the films in which they misbehaved by drawing lines between the correct pairs. Just for fun, we've thrown in a couple of "good guys" too. Circle them first.

FIND IT IN THE LIBRARY!

Feast your imagination on the following Disney films, then read the books they came from for an unbeatable banquet of adventure and laughter!

"Ride a Wild Pony"
 from "A Sporting Proposition"
 by James Aldridge

make a MILLIONAIRE MOBILE

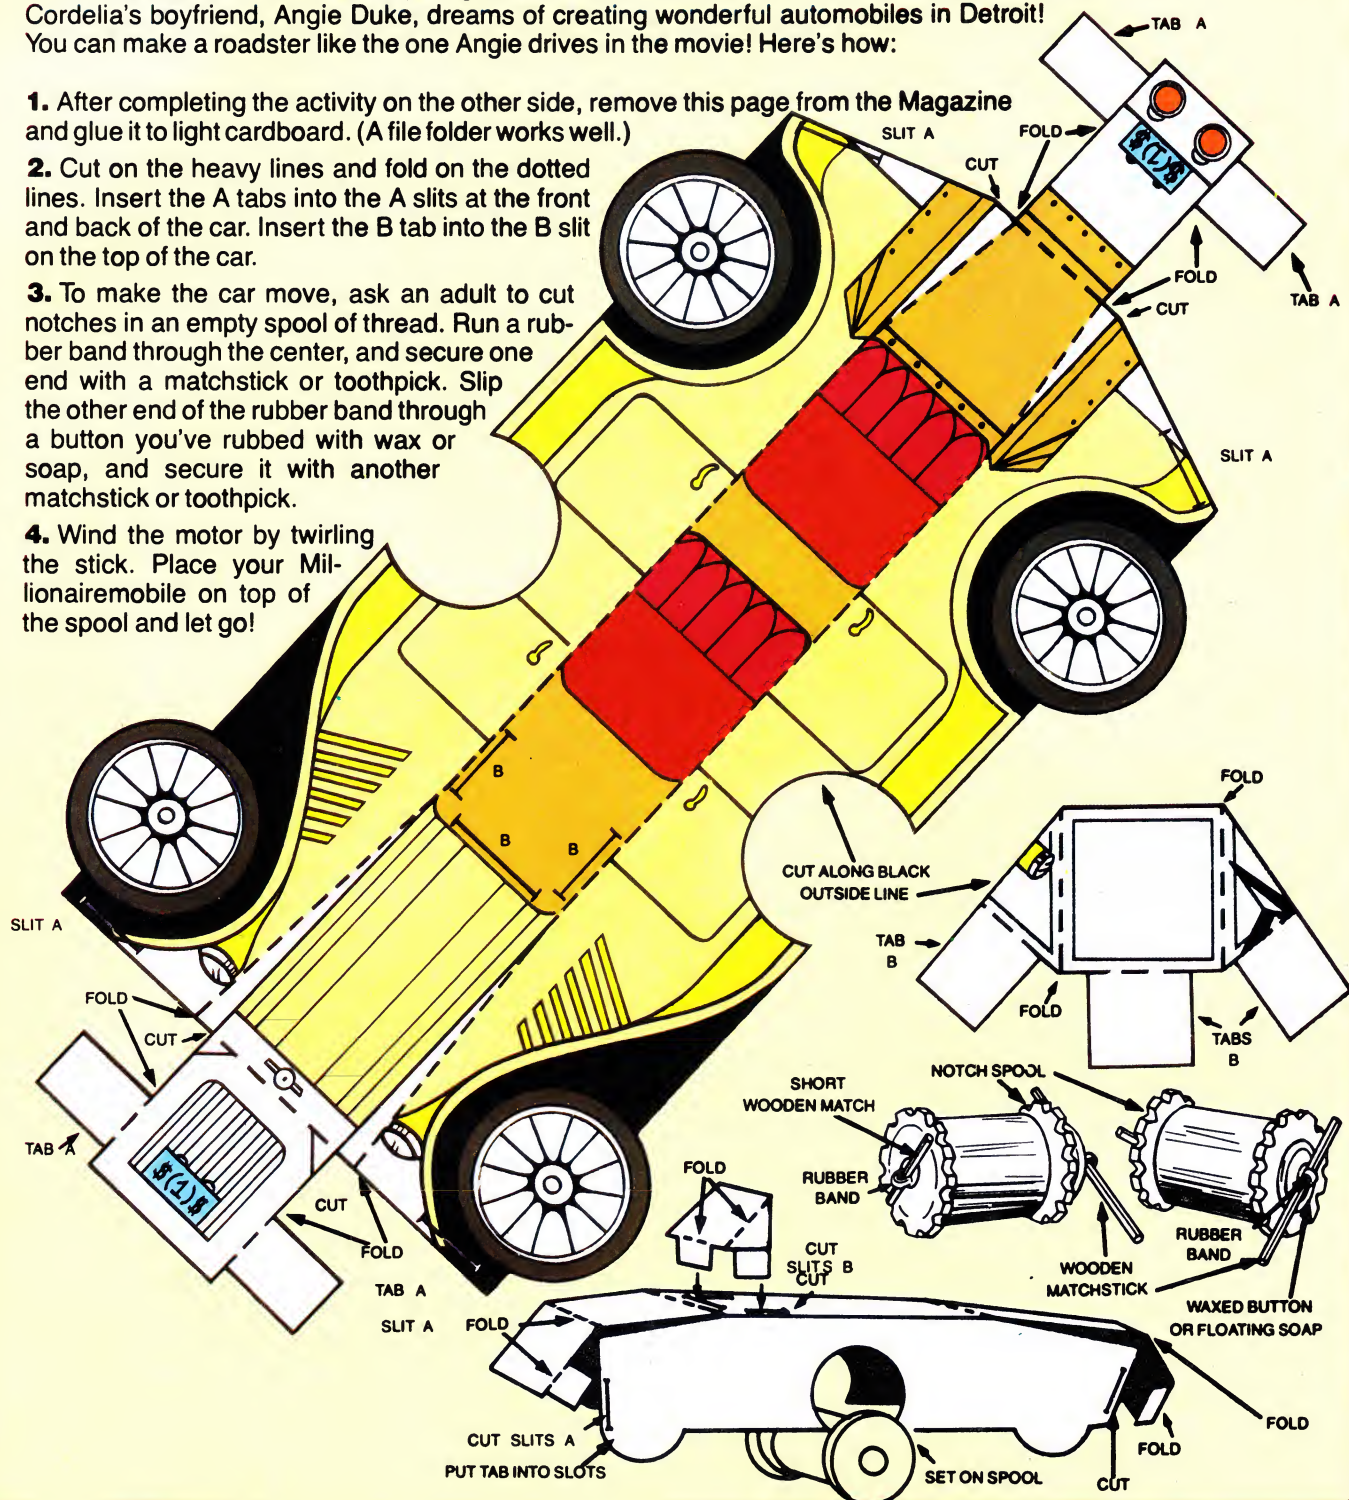

In "The Happiest Millionaire" (airing November 6, 10, 13, 15, 17, 19, 22, 25, 28 and 30)
Cordelia's boyfriend, Angie Duke, dreams of creating wonderful automobiles in Detroit!
You can make a roadster like the one Angie drives in the movie! Here's how:

1. After completing the activity on the other side, remove this page from the Magazine and glue it to light cardboard. (A file folder works well.)

2. Cut on the heavy lines and fold on the dotted lines. Insert the A tabs into the A slits at the front and back of the car. Insert the B tab into the B slit on the top of the car.

3. To make the car move, ask an adult to cut notches in an empty spool of thread. Run a rubber band through the center, and secure one end with a matchstick or toothpick. Slip the other end of the rubber band through a button you've rubbed with wax or soap, and secure it with another matchstick or toothpick.

4. Wind the motor by twirling the stick. Place your Millionairemobile on top of the spool and let go!

Next time you're outside, collect some natural treasures for this autumn wreath. Your grocery store and very own kitchen can yield a bountiful harvest of things to use also!

JOIN POOH AND HIS PALS ON "WELCOME TO POOH CORNER" EVERY MORNING AND ON WEEKDAY AFTERNOONS.

DIRECTIONS:

1. Look for leaves, seeds, nuts, pods and burrs, corn husks, dried grasses and flowers, pine cones, twigs and bark, acorns, dried berries, moss, whole cloves, nutmeg or cinnamon sticks.

2. Remember: Always ask before collecting on private land. Check the rules before gathering on state or national land. Never use or damage living plants.

3. Ask an adult to help you dry everything you've collected in a VERY LOW oven (150°-200°) for 30 minutes to get rid of any hidden insects.

4. Dip delicate dried grasses and flowers into a thin solution of white glue and water.

5. Cut two wheels of heavy cardboard. Glue together and let dry.

6. Paint one side with glue. Cover with scraps of burlap or other fabric. Let dry.

7. Arrange your autumn treasures on the fabric side of the wreath. Glue each item down one at a time.

8. Add a bow of bright calico or brown velveteen. Hang on a door or at a window for lots of "ahhhhhhhs" from friends.
